(b) Standards. In conducting judicial performance evaluations, commissions have the authority to review available case management data and statistics, review written judicial opinions and orders, collect information from courtroom observations, interview judges and justices, accept information from interested persons, review confidential summary information from the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline, and engage in other methods to help form recommendations and prepare narratives that reflect the results of performance evaluations of judges and justices. The evaluations must only include the performance evaluation criteria set forth in 13-5.5-107 C.R.S.

(c) The executive director of the Office of Judicial Performance Evaluation shall cause to be published and posted at all times on the office's website the names of the state and district commissioners and the name, address, telephone number, and e-mail address of the executive director of the Office of Judicial Performance Evaluation.

(4) ~~The State or district commission on judicial performance evaluation may not disclose confidential information received from the Colorado Commission on Judicial Discipline (CCJD) in the narrative unless the judge or justice waives confidentiality. The judge or justice shall have seven days from receipt of the commission's final recommendation and narrative to submit the 100-word response to the chair of the commission or the executive director of the Office of Judicial Performance Evaluation, who will forward the response to the commission. The commission may then change its vote count or revise the narrative and shall provide the judge or justice with the final narrative within seven days following the receipt of the response.

The commission must determine whether there are performance indications that warrant an interim evaluation. To make that determination, the commission shall consider the interim survey report and may also consider courtroom observations, prior evaluation narratives, and any written information received. If a commission decides not to conduct an interim evaluation, the commission shall notify the judge or justice in writing of that decision and the reasons therefor. If a commission decides to conduct an interim evaluation, the commission will notify the executive director, who will notify the judge or justice and provide instructions on what materials should be submitted to the commission for the evaluation. (2) Descriptions of the performance of the judge or justice over the interim term, including any areas of notably strong or weak performance with respect to the judicial performance criteria in section 13-5.5-107, C.R.S. (integrity, legal knowledge, communication skills, judicial temperament, administrative performance, and service to the legal profession and the public), and any additional information that the commission believes may be of assistance to the justice or judge in improving judicial performance.

(e) If a commission recommends an improvement plan, the procedures developed and implemented for such a plan will follow the guidelines set forth in Rule 18 and 13-5.5-110 C.R.S.

(f) A commission shall grant each justice or judge who receives an interim evaluation the opportunity to meet with the commission or otherwise respond to the interim evaluation no later than ten days following the justice's or judge's receipt of the interim evaluation. Any additional interview shall be held within fourteen days of the request.

(h) If a meeting is held or a response is made, the commission may revise its interim evaluation and shall provide the judge or justice with the final evaluation within fourteen days following the written response or additional interview.

(i) Evaluations, recommendations, and any other relevant information related to an interim year evaluation shall not be released to the public, except as authorized in section 13-5.5-113(3)(a-c) C.R.S. and Rule 18(c).

Rule 18. Individual Judicial Improvement Plans

The chief justice or appropriate chief judge, or their designee, shall develop an improvement plan for such justice or judge and shall send the improvement plan to the State Commission for review and approval by the executive director, subject to review and approval by the State Commission. After the executive director on behalf of the State Commission reviews and approves the improvement plan, the chief justice or chief judge, or their designee, is responsible for implementing and overseeing the improvement plan.

(c) Once the justice or judge has completed the improvement plan, the chief justice or chief judge, or their designee, shall convey the results of the improvement plan activities to the appropriate commission, in writing, and copy the executive director, who will maintain a copy of the improvement plan and the statement of the results in the appropriate commission files.

Rule 20. Records

Upon completing its required recommendations and narratives, each commission shall collect all documents and other information received, including all copies, regarding the justices or judges evaluated. Each commission shall forward all such materials to the State Commission within 30 days following submission of its recommendations and narratives to the State Commission for destruction. The State Commission may authorize district commissions to submit evaluation materials to the court executive or designee in each district for destruction in the courthouse.

Rule 21. Complaints

The State Commission shall defer to the district commission's evaluation and recommendation, unless the State Commission finds a serious infraction of the rules or statutes governing commissions on judicial performance.

(b) The State Commission may publicly disclose a complaint, a response thereto, and the State Commission's decision, provided that confidential information is redacted.
